A Sure Cure.

A haggard looking woman, speaking with a strong Irish brogue, walked into a West Side drug store in New York the other day and asked for a bottle of Dr. Quack's Consumption Cure. While the clerk was wrapping the package, she conversed volubly of Mike, her husband, who was sick with consumption. She said one of her neighbors, Mrs. Casey, had told her that the bottle of medicine she held in her hands would surely restore Mike to health. So she had saved 50 cents from the scant earnings she had made over the washtub in order that her husband might have a chance. As she turned to go away, her eye was attracted by a sign upon which was this legend in big red letters. "Buy Red Cross Christmas Seals, and help Cure Consumption A penny for a seal."

From the few cents in the palm of her hand, the woman drew out a nickel and holding it to the clerk, said, "O'll take five of them. Sure, with this bottle of medicine, and thim things stuck on Mike, he'll be well in a wake."

Alfalfa For Horse Pasture.

One of the foremost horse breeders in America, who constantly maintains upwards of 100 head of various ages, writes this: "In my experience of twenty five years in pasturing horses on alfalfa results have convinced me that it produces more bone, muscle and blood in horses in less time than any other pasturage with which I am acquainted. But I believe it profitable in raising the best horses to use also a moderate grain ration, to stimulate rapid growth and early development; my horses, however, have shown no ill effects from pasturing on alfalfa without grain or other feed, and I have found such pasturage conducive to health and prolificacy, maturing animals equal for service to any reared otherwise. I have raised 3-year-old grown on alfalfa and a light grain ration to exceed a ton in weight, carrying all the good qualities of the breed to which they belonged. Further, I find using alfalfa as a horse pasture a much more economical method of raising horses than any other."—From Coburn's "The Book of Alfalfa."

Known by the Wrappers.

Exchanges littered the editor's desk, but he didn't seem to care. Looking over the heap he selected a few rolls, tossing the others in the waste paper basket.

"Don't you want those? Don't you read them? You haven't even opened them."

"Nope! Nothing in 'em."

"How do you know?"

"I know 'em by the wrappers."

Then he continued: "I notice that the paper that comes to my table neatly wrapped for the mail is the best for my purpose. It is more carefully written, better set up, better printed and more reliable. The exchange that is crumpled, poorly folded, carelessly wrapped and addressed is smelly in print, indifferently compiled, merely thrown together for the sake of turning out an issue and not to be depended upon in its reports nor worth nothing in its opinion."

Just as one naturally respects a well-dressed person, so I do my well-dressed exchanges."

The Grand old State of Ohio.

Accepting the Republican nomination for Governor of Ohio or July 27th, Warren G. Harding said:

"I make no idle or unseemly boast when I say to you that we are going to victory triumphantly: This grand old Republican State of Ohio never has been called to report in favor of a serious cause without responding with wise judgment and a dominant voice."

Governor Harmon's re-election by a plurality close to 100,000 would indicate that Ohio is still a "grand old State" without being Republican, while the wisdom of her judgment and the dominancy of her voice can not be questioned.

The Round-up.

It's as easy to get into court as it is difficult to get out.

You will not necessarily keep cool by blowing in money.

A man seldom has enough faith in pins to want to be a woman.

It pays to recover umbrellas, but it pays better not to lose them.

A small man with a 200-pound wife always calls her his little girl.

The ventilating apparatus alone on the steamer George Washington requires an energy of 150-horse-power.

Friend—When you run over a dog in a country road, what do you do? Motorist—Thank heaven that it was not a porcupine.—Exchange.

Stranger—It is a pretty healthy neighborhood? Native—You bet it is. Thar hain't been a death here in years, 'ceptin' the undertaker, an' he died o' starvation.—Harper's Weekly.

Clergyman—Did your mother try to inculcate lessons of thrift? Chicago Show Girl—Indeed she did. Many's the time she said to me when I was a child: "Maggie, never live beyond your alimony."—Life.

Aids to Health Keeping.

Lots of women would be better if they would keep in mind the following "helps:"

Keep alert. Mental ruts make more invalids than do overwrought imaginations.

Keep physically active. The inert girl who hates to move is usually the greatest growler about her health.

Keep clean. The close connection between the pores of the skin and good health is not generally considered carefully enough.

Keep interested. There is nothing like a fad or an object in life to put aches and pains into the background.

Keep busy. The satanic mischief provided for idle hands is better known than the physical mischief that hounds the woman with time to think about her health.

Keep away from drugs. Most women deserve all the slandering they get for the dosing habit. Walk more and take less medicine.

Veils of the Season.

Stylish and becoming are veils of white ring dot net with the rings in black and a fine black lace border to match.

The winter's veils show large, octagonal meshes, sometimes plain, again with big woven dots.

Care should be exercised in wearing the veil or the nose sticking through the meshes gives a grotesque appearance.

The most becoming veil is a fine mixture of black and white, tiny black dots on white net being better than white or black. These have become known as the beauty veil because so many women wear them, regardless of style.

Gone to Rest.

Elmer Karnes, son of Nannie Karnes, of Highland Park, Ky., died Dec. 13, 1910. Funeral was conducted at the home of his uncle, June Karnes, by Rev. Dudgeon, Cane Valley in a very impressive manner. The remains were laid to rest in the family graveyard, near his uncle's. He was 21 years of age and leaves to mourn his death, his mother, five brothers and one sister, and a host of friends and relatives.

Elmer has gone to meet his father and brother in that world beyond, where there is no pain and sorrow. So do not grieve dear mother, brothers and sister as Dear Elmer is waiting to greet you to that home beyond.

His Aunt.
